

The Secret of a Good Memory (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Secret of a Good Memory So far as I am aware, no writer on Mnemonics, or propounder of a formal system of memory, has hitherto recognised the fact that every mind takes in and treasures the impressions received through one sense-agency - e. g. sight or sound - with especial readiness; while in remembering it employs the same or another sense, mentally or physically, as an agent to recall the impressions previously lodged in the memory. It is obvious that no success in cultivating the memory can be confidently expected unless the system of training adopted is of a nature to suit individual peculiarities. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.
